The University of North Carolina

Everett University Day Speaker

SIXTY-FIVE HUNDRED boys and girls graduated from our high schools this year against 1500 four years ago. The graduates this year exceed the total enrollment in the high schools four years ago. There are more children enrolled in our high schools this year than had ever looked in on high school and college ten years ago.

Now what of the future? I need cite only two instances to show that our institutions of higher learning must be kept open to every North Carolina youth who has the capacity to digest what he gets there. Mr. Baker, Secretary of War under President Wilson, sums it up in a sentence: The chief end of democracy is education, and the chief end of education is democracy. Limit the numbers here, and the fine spirit of democracy which pervades this campus gives way to class education which will not be tolerated in a free State.

To state the other point, proves the proposition. We are spending this year on those whose minds are gone and on those who have never had any minds $1 250,000, and are spending just a little more on the development of those who must take the lead in the next generation. We are informed by our experts that diseases of the mind increase at a more rapid rate than the general population. What statesman of the future; what good business man, would dare to destroy the equation?—Extract from the University Day address of W. N. Everett, '86, Secretary of State.

In the first (summer) quarter of 1923-1924, 255.

In 1919, ten higher degrees were conferred; in June, 1923, there were 42.

Extent of Influence

Last year thirteen states were represented, and students held degrees from fifty-two colleges and universities. Practically every Class A college in the South is represented, together with many in other sections of the country. The Graduate School is not limited in its influence or its membership to the State of North Carolina.

Standing

The University is a member of the Association of American Universities, a small group of institutions, including the great private foundations like Harvard, Yale and Columbia, and the great state universities like Wisconsin and Illinois. Membership in this association is limited to institutions whose graduate schools are of high rank. Credits for graduate work done here and our higher degrees are accepted at face value and without examination by the great European universities.

Opportunities offered

Last year sixty-two professors offered 233 advanced courses of instruction, of which 163 were open to graduates only. The Library is now probably the best in the South; is growing at the rate of over ten thousand volumes a year; receives over a thousand periodicals annually; and is spending more money annually for books than many of the older universities. The University publishes eight journals of research, besides separate books and monographs. All important fields are represented by professors of wide reputation for their contributions to learning.

University Day

Throughout the length and breadth of the State and Nation University Day was fittingly celebrated. Here on the campus Memorial Hall was the scene of a meeting that is always impressive. Secretary of State, W. N. Everett, '86, principal speaker of the ceremonial, called upon University men to love their State as well as Alma Mater; messages from alumni the world over poured in; and while Dean Royster read the list of the alumni dead for the year and the quartet sang "Integer Vitae," the University stood at attention, the most impressive moment of the University year.

Nine Men Visit Davie's Tomb

"He once was the head of the Masonic Lodge of our State, but his grave bears no masonic emblem. He was once Governor of North Carolina, but his epitaph mentions only his faithfulness in public office. He was chief founder of a certain University, but the writer of his epitaph mentions only his devotion to education."

The above sentences are taken from a letter from C. L. Cates, secretary of the Anson Alumni Association, describing the visit on University Day of nine alumni to the grave of Gen. William Richardson Davie, founder of the University, at the Old Waxhaw Presbyterian church just over the South Carolina line.

In the twelve years of THE REVIEW's existence no more interesting letter has been received. Not to read it is to miss the high light in this issue, and not to act on the suggestion outlined in it is to miss the rarest sort of privilege.

Out-of-State Alumni Plan Big Reunion in June

Two alumni undertakings which should meet with the hearty approval and support of all alumni were gotten underway on University Day by the local alumni associations of Spartanburg, S. C., and Washington, D. C.

Telegrams were sent by R. P. Pell, president of the Spartanburg association, to all out-of-State associations, calling for a real home-coming of out-of-State alumni in June 1924. In due course, invitations will be sent to the 3,000 or more alumni living outside of North Carolina to be present and a special celebration featuring the presence of the out-of-Staters will be arranged.

The Campus Beautiful

Through the activity of Dr. Wade H. Atkinson, and his associates at Washington, D. C., The Campus Beautiful movement suggested by Dr. Atkinson at commencement two years ago has been successfully launched, and on University Day a descriptive folder, setting forth the plans of the committee, was sent to the entire list of alumni.

The fundamental purpose of the committee, as explained by Dr. Atkinson, is to make this campus the most beautiful in the South and to do it through the development of walks and driveways and the proper attention to grass, trees, and flowers.

With contributions of $1000 each from Dr. Atkinson, Dr. W. C. Coker, Dr. James Sprunt, and Mr. John Sprunt Hill, the committee has laid out its plan of operation and has called upon all alumni to assist it.

A Fact Is a Fact

To the several score of alumni who, on the Twelfth, were elected to leadership in local associations throughout the State and country, THE REVIEW has two words to say.

The first of these is sensed in the following excerpts from a letter from Mangum Weeks, '16, secretary of the Washington, D. C., association, who seems to feel that he has been disillusioned as to the way in which alumni respond to calls for coöperation in the work of Alma Mater. It is, frankly, that the responses to calls for participation in alumni meetings and undertakings will not be 100 per cent satisfactory. They may, as in this instance, not be more than 10 or 15 per cent so.

Of the ninety-odd alumni resident in the city, eleven, including the president and secretary, were present—a singular instance of the filial devotion generally displayed by Chapel Hill graduates toward their Cherishing Mother. About ten other alumni were heard from, seven of whom had accepted but found it necessary to cancel their reservations at the last minute. The remaining seventy, with a week within which to answer the announcement card, made no response of any kind. I have given these facts in detail because I am interested enough to want to know whether this is a typical instance of University response or not. With us, I am afraid it is, for the same thing happened last October, with the usual result of the officers having to make up the deficit in cost of room and of unused food. If this is a typical instance, then it's high time something were done about it.

Look at the Other Side

But this is a side of the picture that must be recognized, but not allowed to exercise too profound an influence upon the officers of local associations and members of special committees. For, in spite of the facts indicated, there is another side, and it is to it that our second word refers.

Officers of local associations may confidently expect to meet with obstacles to the most effective alumni activity, but, as in the case of the Washington association, the effort is decidedly worth the making. The meeting would unquestionably have gone with a bang if all the 90 members had been present; but even though they were not, Dr. Atkinson and his Washington associates who were present put The Campus Beautiful Program definitely to work and five years from now not only the student body but every visitor to the campus will consciously or unconsciously pay them tribute for what they have successfully begun. Alumni achievement, like all other achievement that amounts to much, comes as a result of the sacrifice and special effort of a comparatively few, but, in the final analysis, it is worth what it costs. A big home-coming of out-of-State alumni in June, the most beautiful campus in the South, a Graham Memorial building that will serve thousands of students in learning how to be citizens of the campus—all will tax the energies of some individual alumni—but the result will far outweigh the cost.

The University Suffers Loss

Twice within the first two weeks of October the University experienced a profound sense of loss incident to the death of two of its most distinguished and best loved sons, Lucius Polk McGehee, '87, Dean of the Law School, and Dorman Steele Thompson, '01, State Senator and member of the Board of Trustees.

Members of the University faculty and alumni of the Law School since 1904 have intimate knowledge of the ripe scholarship, the wise judgment, the quiet modesty, the genuine friendliness, and charming personality of Dean McGehee as well as of his ability as a lucid and inspiring teacher of the law. For twenty years he had devoted unspairingly all of his fine abilities to the upbuilding of a constantly enlarging Law School, and, though he was not permitted to see the completed work of his hands, a new law building, adequate to the needs of the University for another generation, is now in use as an evidence of the effectiveness and permanence of his work.

Dorman Steele Thompson was less well known upon the campus, but his labors for Alma Mater began during his student days and have increased with the years of his public life. Both men exemplified the University's highest ideals, and their passing is attended with profound grief by the many who were fortunate to count them friends.

Research in Progress

Research in Progress, as alumni may or may not know, is a publication in the Record series issued annually in July by the Graduate School and summarizes all the special investigations carried on during the year by graduate students and members of the faculty.

Always interesting for the light which it throws on the more scholarly aspects of the University's work, the number for 1922-23 is especially notable in that it records a total of 200 odd investigations during the year, as well as the effective founding of the University of North Carolina Press and the publication of a number of volumes by it. A further fact made clear by this issue which is of particular interest is, that whereas investigations frequently bear but little relation to present day affairs, a score or more of those made during the year treat of situations in State and Southern life today. In this respect, the University, through its students and faculty alike, is bringing expert information to bear upon questions of great immediate importance, and in that way is serving its day and generation to an extent that it has never done before.

To the alumnus who would know something of the more serious aspects of the University's work the publication will prove most illuminating. Copies may be secured upon request to the Dean of the Graduate School.

Studies in Philology

With this issue Studies in Philology, founded by the Philological Club of the University and now published by the University of North Carolina Press, completed its twentieth volume.

To have maintained a journal in the South for twenty years is, in itself, something of an achievement. But to publish a scholarly journal in the field of the languages and literatures which now finds its way into the leading libraries of the world, and to see its table of contents increasingly filled with the names of leading scholars everywhere, is an achievement of which the University cannot be too proud.

THE REVIEW finds it in order to remind the alumni of this achievement, and to make the observation, recently verified by a careful checking up of the output of a number of University Presses, that in the publication of Studies in Philology, The Journal of the Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society, The Journal of Social Forces, The High School Journal and The Sprunt Historical Publications, the University holds a most enviable position. Its list compares favorably with those of the foremost institutions, and in that fact it is to be congratulated.

The University's Reach

Evidence of the extending reach of the University has been strikingly given since the beginning of the present term by the opening of extension classes conducted by regular members of the faculty in the following towns: Raleigh, Greensboro, Durham, High Point, Statesville, Salisbury, Burlington, Sanford, Oxford, and Lexington. In every instance a minimum registration of fifteen members per class is required and in a number of towns not only are the classes large, but there are classes in several subjects.

Commenting upon this and related phases of the University's activity, the Durham Herald speaks as follows:

Hundreds of men and women in all walks of life throughout the State are today using the services of the University for better fitting themselves for their chosen work. A whole book could be written telling of the service the University is rendering the people of the State outside of its regular academic instruction.

Those things, as we see it, make the University something more than an educational institution where boys and girls may earn a B.A., M.A., or some other of the customary degrees conferred by universities and colleges. If it didn't confer a single degree, but carried on the great work it is now doing out in the State it would more than justify its existence and cost to the people.

A Fitting Memorial

Announcement was made by President Chase on University Day that the local chapter of the American Red Cross had presented to the University Infirmary a silver service as a memorial to Bessie Roper who died in 1918 during the influenza epidemic while nursing University students.

Although Miss Roper was in no way connected with the University and at the beginning of the epidemic was engaged in private nursing, when the call came to help relieve the fearful situation at the Infirmary, she volunteered and contracted the disease from which she died.

In the annals of the University no service has been more simply rendered, and no name has more fittingly been marked for signal honor.

The Yale Game

On another page appear letters from alumni in which approval and condemnation are meted out to the athletic authorities of the University for sending in large measure second team men to meet Yale in New Haven on the 6th of October. A statement also appears made by the athletic authorities setting forth the reasons which led to their decision to follow the course indicated.

For information as to just what was done, and what the reasons for the action were, THE REVIEW refers its readers to the statement and letters themselves. Here, it wishes to record the happiness it has felt in the impression which Carolina made upon the South during the past two years through the conduct of her basketball teams in Atlanta, and in the praise given the Varsity by the Northern press for its splendid performance against Yale in 1922. Similarly, it wishes to record its regret that, once the game had been scheduled with Yale, all first team men capable of playing were not in the thick of the fight in the Yale Bowl where 20,000 visitors expected to witness Carolina in full action, even though "the Yale game is scheduled as a practice game for Yale and a tryout game for Carolina" in which "both coaches use as many as twenty-two men or two teams."

To win the Trinity and State games was important, but not enough so in THE REVIEW's opinion to compensate for the loss in reputation which the University suffered. Never again does THE REVIEW want to see sentences like these appearing (as they did in the issue of October 12) in the Yale Alumni Weekly's account of the game: "Nothing could be told of the real strength of the team (Yale's) from Saturday's game. This week's contest, however, bringing the University of Georgia to the Bowl, should be different. The Georgia outfit is highly spoken of this fall, and a hard contest is expected from them."

The Student Council at Work

That the Student Council of 1923-24 knows its duty and is determined to do it has been demonstrated on two occasions during the first month of the new year. At the beginning of the term it discovered that hazing was again showing its hateful head, and, without any hesitation, suspended five students guilty of the offense until the beginning of the winter quarter. The names of the offenders were given to the State press, and hazing came to a speedy end.

The second incident grew out of the Trinity game. An alumnus back on the Hill with too much John Barleycorn, was discovered in the act of celebrating. The town authorities were promptly notified, the offender spent the night in the guard house, and the next morning was fined ten dollars and costs, and sent back home.

UNIVERSITY DAY IS WIDELY CELEBRATED

Forty Groups Met and Renewed Pledges of Support to Alma Mater—W. N. Everett, '86, Speaks at University—Reunion of Out-of-State Alumni Planned

The University's 130th Birthday was widely celebrated! It was well celebrated!

Through the masterful address of W. N. Everett, '86, to the University community in Memorial Hall; through the little group of Anson County alumni assembled at the tomb of the University's Founder; through the Washington, D. C. alumni carrying in their own teeth the program to add elegance to the surroundings in which University men live; through the little band of Spartanburg alumni, realizing that the University of North Carolina is wider than the state which gave it life and has nurtured it, now trying to bring back into Alma Mater's physical presence those of her sons who have gone on to other states and countries; through the bands of alumni assembled in Jacksonville, Atlanta, Birmingham, San Francisco, Norfolk and Boston; and through the 35 groups assembled throughout North Carolina—through them all ran the consciousness that the alumni were not only celebrating the 130th birthday of that venerable mother, but that they were melting themselves into a relationship of more definite usefulness to the University and to the society which it serves than they have known in the past.

Forty Groups Meet

In every report which has been received so far there is not only evident the fact that the occasion has been celebrated, but that those celebrations have been surcharged with the definite note of the bigger things which the alumni are thinking for the institution in the future.

"We have something that remains constant," wrote one Secretary. "And University alumni are coming to realize that the constant thing about Carolina which we love is its passion for public service. Then we cannot demand that the old well, or Old South, or the walks remain just as they were when each of us first saw Chapel Hill. We should like for them to remain the same, but if they are torn up and old familiar haunts destroyed, we can still anchor to that bigger thing which remains—the continued con-

UNIVERSITY'S GROWTH VIEWED BY PERIODS

President Chase announced at the University Day celebration at Chapel Hill on October 12 that registration had reached 2,124 and was expected to go beyond 2,200 for the year. Salient facts regarding the University's tremendous growth in recent years were emphasized by University Day speakers. One speaker put it this way:

"Today the memories of alumni scattered to the four corners of the earth are winging their way back to Chapel Hill, to the University that some knew in 1890 with a student body of 200 and a faculty of 19, to an institution that others knew in 1910 with a student body of 821 and a faculty of 78 and to a student body that still others knew in 1915 with a student body of 1,011 and a faculty of 89. Today the University has more than 2,100 students and 155 faculty members."

sciousness on the part of the University that it rose as an investment of society for its future leadership and guidance, and that its every item of growth is in response to that obligation."

Day Widely Celebrated

As the REVIEW goes to press complete reports of all the meetings held—there were 40—have not been received at Secretary Grant's office. The gatherings included the associations in the following counties and towns: Anson, Birmingham, Buncombe, California, Cartaret, Craven, Cumberland, Durham, Florida, Forsyth, Georgia, Guilford, Harnett, Harvard-Tech, High Point, Lumberton, McDowell, Mecklenburg, Nash (Rocky Mount), New Hanover, Rockingham, Rowan, Rutherford, Sampson, Surry, Wake, Washington City, Chatham, Granville, Lee, Orange, Pee Dee (South Carolina), Norfolk and Spartanburg.

McDowell

"We celebrated the 12th with a well attended and enthusiastic banquet," Jas. E. Jameson is President, George B. Strickland, Vice-President, and J. Will Pless, Jr., Secretary.

Orange

The Chapel Hill and Hillsboro associations were consolidated into the Orange County Association in a meeting in Gerrard Hall on the morning of the 12th. Professor Collier Cobb presided. Major J. W. Graham, Hillsboro, was made President, Sam Gattis, and M. C. S. Noble, Vice-Presidents, and I. H. Butt, Secretary.

Norfolk

In the first meeting of Norfolk alumni held at the Fairfax Hotel, C. S. Carr was elected President, G. R. Berkeley, Vice-President, and L. P. Matthews, Secretary. There are near 100 alumni in and around Norfolk. Thirty-five attended this first banquet.

Secretary Grant of the Central Office attended and addressed the gathering. Led by Burton Smith and backed by every civic organization in Norfolk, the alumni there are making every effort to get the Carolina-V. M. I. game played in that city.

New Hanover

"Fellow alumni, your Alma Mater wants you to know that she is not ambitious except for other's welfare, not desirous of wealth except for the liberation of the poor, not drunk with progress but stripped for action, not impoverishing the commonwealth, but using the slight fraction of its great income for spiritual investment," said Dean Bradshaw to this alumni group assembled at the Hotel Wilmington. Dr. J. S. Murphy and Harry Solomon were the last officers of the Association. Robert C. deRosset was elected President; Leslie Hummel, Vice-President and Marsden deRosset, Secretary.

Pee Dee (South Carolina)

The alumni of this section of South Carolina met at Florence. E. D. Sallinger, Florence, is President, and A. L. M. Wiggins, Hartsville, is Secretary.

Florida

H. Plant Osborne continues as President and Wm. A. Schell, Secretary of this Association which met at the Seminole Hotel on the evening of the 13th. Professor W. S. Bernard attended and addressed the gathering. The secretary reports that of a total of about 100 alumni in the entire state 50 are very active.

Georgia

A state-wide meeting of the Georgia alumni was addressed by Professor Bernard on the evening of the 12th in Atlanta. He had with him to illustrate the present University development a large architect's pencil sketch of the University plant. W. N. Little is President and J. W. Speas, Secretary of the Georgia Association.

Greensboro

C. R. Wharton made the principal address before 60 Greensboro alumni assembled at the Country Club on the evening of the 12th, and was later elected President of the association for the coming year. He pointed out that "the growth in size has increased the cost of running the University. The growth in its complex in becoming a University explains its greatly increased cost—a consideration too frequently ignored," he said.

Fred Archer was elected Vice-President, and E. E. Rives was re-elected Secretary-Treasurer.

"The Great Commoner"—Clem G. Wright, had six separate addresses to enter the record during this gathering. Rev. I. Harding Hughes, and E. D. Broadhurst also spoke.

A committee was appointed to bring to Greensboro the Davidson-Carolina football game, if possible.

Harvard-Tech (Cambridge)

Sixteen of Carolina's alumni now studying in Cambridge met at the Parker House to celebrate the 12th. W. M. York is President, and M. C. S. Noble, Jr., Secretary of their association.

Wake

Eighty alumni assembled at the Yarrowborough Hotel and listened to Judge W. A. Hoke, "Governor" R. A. Doughton, Dr. R. H. Lewis and some delightful singing by a Meredith College quintet. Senator Chas. U. Harris was elected President and R. B. House continued as Secretary.

A committee was appointed to petition the University Athletic Association to change the date of the State College football game from Thursday of Fair Week to Armistice Day.

Among those present were: S. A. Ashe, Jr., Dr. O. C. Abernethy, Simmons Busbee, Perrin Busbee, Roy M. Brown, Crawford Biggs, H. G. Baity, Philip Busbee, C. K. Burgess, A. J. Barwick, N. B. Broughton, John H. Boushall, Judge Clark, Dr. A. C. Campbell, J. B. Cheshire, Jr., G. F. Catlett, Dr. Caviness, O. J. Coffin, L. B. Davis, C. B. Denson, R. A. Doughton, Clyde Douglas, A. Y. Elliott, Dr. O. E. Finch, Kenneth Gant, Dr. M. R. Gibson, A. C. Holloway, J. R. Hester, W. C. Harris, F. M. Harper.

Charles U. Harris, C. B. Holding, Rufus A. Hunter, Dr. V. M. Hicks, Miss Julia Harris, John Hinsdale, R. B. House, Harry Howell, James P. Kerr, W. T. Joyner, Dr. Judd, Mrs. Judd, James Johnson, J. B. Lewis, R. B. Lewis, Dr. R. H. Lewis, Dr. B. J. Lawrence, B. M. Lackey, H. M. London, Judge Manning, Barnett Naiman, S. S. Nash.

SEES ENROLLMENT

10,000 BY 1933

Angus W. McLean, Law '02, banker of Lumberton, former director of the war finance corporation, addressing the Cumberland alumni on University Day, predicted the University will have in 1933 approximately 10,000 students.

Commenting on the statement the Greensboro Daily News said editorially: "The prediction may seem fantastic to many North Carolinians, but it is really nothing of the sort. There are now about 10,000 college students in all the institutions of higher learning in the state; but if and when North Carolina comes up to the American average by keeping approximately two per cent of her school population in college, she will be compelled to take in just about double that number. The school population of the state today is 900,000; if two per cent were in college we should have 18,000 college students today. By 1933 the school population will certainly have risen to a million, which would give us just 20,000 as the two per cent, collegiate population."

West, Dr. J. B. Wright, R. B. Wilson, J. A. Yarrowborough, W. A. Hoke, C. F. Harvey, Haywood Parker.

Spartanburg (South Carolina)

The University alumni met here on the evening of the 8th with Secretary Daniel L. Grant as guest. After the University of the present and the alumni work had been presented the attention of the meeting centered upon the proposal of Dr. Pell that there be arranged for the June, 1924 Commencement a special reunion program especially for those alumni who reside outside the state. Ways and means of carrying this through and a possible program for their group when assembled were considered. As a Special Committee to foster this project, President Murphy has appointed R. P. Pell, '81, Chairman, John W. Alexander, '88, and E. S. Lindsay, '19.

Already many of the out-of-state associations have pledged their support and soon a complete organization for carrying this out will be completed.

Sampson

The Sampson Alumni met at 2:00 p. m. Friday at the Montague Hotel. Fitzhugh Whitfield is the association's President and Miss Fannie Vann is Secretary.

Birmingham

The recently organized Birmingham Alumni Association held its first real get-together by celebrating the passing of the 130th anniversary of laying the cornerstone of Old East. S. S. Heide is President, and T. R. Eagles is Secretary.

Washington City

The principal consideration of the Washington alumni at this October 12th celebration was their own project to raise funds to beautify the University's surroundings. Dr. Wade H. Atkinson is Chairman of this Committee and it is largely through his unflagging enthusiasm that this project has advanced so far. The meeting was held at Sunset Inn, 1407 Massachusetts Avenue, N. W.

The Association endorsed the proposal of Dr. Pell that there be a special reunion program next June for those alumni who live outside the state.

Those to make talks at the meeting were Frank P. Graham, Judge Elder Little, H. E. C. ("Red Buck") Bryant, W. E. Wiles and others.

Dr. Atkinson was re-elected President; Mrs. R. O. E. Davis, Vice-President and Mangum Weeks was re-elected Secretary.

Forsyth

"None will have to walk" if the plans of the Winston-Salem alumni materialize, for they planned at their October 12th meeting held at the Robert E. Lee Hotel to provide cars for all in the Association who wish to see the game.

R. G. Stockton was elected President to succeed Major J. E. Alexander, A. H. Bahnson, Vice-President, and Forrest G. Miles, Secretary, to succeed Moses Shapiro.

Anson

The Anson Alumni motored to the tomb of General William R. Davie, which is just over the state line from Wadesboro (See the letter of Secretary Cates printed elsewhere in this issue).

Cumberland

The University alumni of Fayetteville banqueted at the LaFayette Hotel and listened to an address by Honorable A. W. McLean of Lumberton, who is a University alumnus. He was formerly Director of the War Finance Corporation, and is now a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor. Declaring that "Education is the backbone of the State" Mr. McLean prophesied that by 1930 the University would have a student population of 10,000.

John H. Cook was elected President, Floyd Souders, Vice-President and Murchison Walker continued as Secretary-Treasurer.

Buncombe

The Asheville alumni lunched together at 1:00 o'clock on the 12th at the Plaza Cafe. In the absence of President Hyatt, R. R. Williams served as toastmaster.

Thomas S. Rollins and Vonn L. Guder were appointed a Committee to arrange for a special train to bring the alumni to the Virginia game and secure seats in a block.

Arrangements were made for a Christmas meeting when the alumni will entertain the present and prospective University students.

Among those present were: R. R. Williams, '02; A. Matthews, '85; James M. Coleman, '17; French Toms, '20;; William Sullivan, '21; Irvin Monk, '23; Kester Walton, '19; Charles Bruce Webb, '18; D. M. Hodges, Jr., '19; Thomas A. Jones, Jr., '10; F. Cox, Grad. '23; J. W. Hummcutt, '22; James P. Sawyer, '18; James Howell, '20; J. Y. Jordan, Jr., '19; M. A. Griffin, '14; J. Frazier Glenn, '02; Eugene C. Ward, '11; E. Reid Russell, '21; Clinton K. Hughes, '17; W. E. Shuford, '95; Henry T. Sharp, '95; Cameron F. MacRae, '97; A. T. Pritchard, '03; Clarence Blackstock, '15; J. E. Swain, '02; M. R. Dunnagan, '14; George Stephens, '96; J. D. Murphy.

Lumberton

The main topic for consideration of the Lumberton alumni at their banquet on the evening of the 11th at the Tea Room was that of consolidating the Lumberton, Rowland and Red Springs Associations into a single—the Robeson County Association. And a committee was appointed to make overtures to the other Associations.

J. D. McLean is the President of the Association and F. Ertel Carlyle is Secretary.

Nash (Rocky Mount)

The 12th was celebrated by a gathering in Rocky Mount of the alumni there. Frank Spruill, Jr., is President, and M. R. Robbins is Secretary.

Mecklenburg

Dean D. D. Carroll, of the School of Commerce, in addressing the Mecklenburg Alumni on the evening of the 12th spoke of the tremendous expansion of the University man and physical power, of the fine contribution of Edward Kidder Graham and the necessity of the construction of the Graham Memorial Building as a "central power house" where the spirit of Carolina might permeate thoroughly the student body and the life of the campus. Other speakers were the President, Hamilton C. Jones, W. W. Craven, A. M. Elliott, D. B. Smith, Joe Person and W. T. Shore.

J. LeGrand Everett and Miss Nettie Allison sang for the gathering.

J. J. Parker was elected President for the coming year, A. G. Brenizer, Vice-President, and Duncan P. Tillett, Secretary-Treasurer.

Upon motion by W. H. Bobbitt it was decided to have a banquet during the Christmas holidays to which present and prospective students are to be invited.

Among those present were: H. C. Jones, '06; F. O. Clarkson, '16; D. P. Tillett, '07; Ernest Neiman, '18; W. H. Hooker, '19; J. J. Parker, '07; W. H. Bobbitt, '21; Marshall E. Lake, '22; C. E. Brown, '21; Frank Wilkes, '83; J. M. Oldham, '94; W. E. Harding, '94; Benjamin Wyche, '94; L. B. Newell, '05; G. W. Graham, Jr., '03; J. H. Pearson, '04; T. R. Brem, '02; A. M. Elliott, '17.

F. J. Blythe, '09; W. C. Rankin, '04; Joe A. Person, '21; J. LeGrand Everett, Jr., '23; Dr. W. W. Craven, '01; W. C. Dowd, Jr., '15; Dr. R. F. Leinbach, ex. '00; C. W. Tillett, Jr., '09; Dr. Otho B. Ross, '05; John A. McRae, ex. '03; R. P. Connelly, '02; J. R. Purser, hon.; D. B. Smith, '97; Walter Clark, Jr., '05; R. L. Rutzler, '11.

Dr. H. L. Sloan, '07; Dr. Addison G. Brenizer, '04; R. Z. Quehy, '04; J. A. Lockhart, '00; A. A. Haughton, '18; Robert Diezt, '21; W. LeGette Blythe, '21; L. D. McPhaul, '98; Dr. C. C. Keiger, '13; N. S. Cochran, '04; E. F. Rimmer, '12; B. T. Denton, '12; Geo. W. King, '21; Warren Mobley, '24; H. G. Harper, Jr., '17; H. P. Harding, '99; W. T. Shore, '05; Odom Alexander, '12.

Stanly

Judge W. P. Stacy of the State Supreme Court was the guest of honor at the annual banquet of the Stanly County Association, held in Albemarle on October 27th.

Judge Stacy spoke on "The University in the Life of the State." Practically all the alumni of the county were present. The banquet had been postponed from October 12th, so that Judge Stacy might be present. Dr. T. A. Hathcock, President of the association, was toastmaster, and the speaker was introduced by R. L. Smith of Albemarle.

It was Judge Stacy's first visit to Albemarle since his early boyhood days when his father, Rev. L. E. Stacy, was pastor of what was known as the old Albemarle circuit.

Wilson

One of the first things the Wilson County Association did at its meeting was to pass resolutions urging Graduate Manager Woollen to reserve 200 seats at the Carolina-Virginia game for the Wilson county alumni and their friends. There are some 200 alumni in the county.

The biggest meeting the association has ever held was planned for Christmas and to arrange for it the following committee was appointed: F. L. Carr, chairman; Albert Oettinger, Bryce Little, Frank S. Hassell and A. V. Anderson of Wilson; K. B. Bailey of Elm City, Marvin Revell of Kenly, Dr. H. H. Powell of Stantonsburg and Douglas Aycock of Black Creek. Prof. Horace Williams will be invited to make the address. Every alumnus will be expected to bring his wife, mother or sweetheart.

Judge Geo. W. Connor presided.

ALUMNI GREETINGS UNIVERSITY DAY

New York, N. Y., Oct. 11, 1923.

Always on Carolina's birthday we are reminded that she has fought to emancipate the mind and the spirit, fighting for the things that lie nearest to men's hearts. It is because of this that we have loved her and will continue to love her. The New York alumni newly organized hope that they may prove of service to their University whose simplicity is her greatness and whose greatness lies in her service. Anything that we can do to keep the old lights burning in Chapel Hill will make us only too happy.

JOHN S. TERRY, Secretary,
New York Alumni Association.

Wilmington, N. C., Oct. 11, 1923.

Enthusiastic meeting of New Hanover County Alumni sends to Alma Mater heartiest greetings and best wishes for continued growth and usefulness. Dean Bradshaw's address was most inspiring and instructive and will assuredly strengthen the existing bonds between us.

J. G. MURPHY, President.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 11, 1923.

Washington Alumni Association sends heartiest best wishes on Alma Mater's hundred and thirtieth birthday anniversary. Let us make her campus justify in beauty her venerableness in years.

WADE H. ATKINSON, President,
MANGUM WEEKS, Secretary.

Raleigh, Oct. 11, 1923.

It is a real deprivation not to be with you on the twelfth and rejoice in person with the alumni and others for the larger life and expansion of the University. Prevented from coming in person, I send my greetings.

Faithfully,
JOSEPHUS DANIELS.

Winston-Salem, N. C., Oct. 11, 1923

The Forsyth County Alumni Association on this 130th anniversary of the founding of the University sends to Alma Mater its hearty congratulations and its best wishes for a continued growth and prosperity.

MOSES SHAPIRO, Secretary.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 11, 1923.

Sixteen Carolina sojourners at the greatest University of the North assembled at dinner at the Parker House send affectionate greetings to the greatest University of the South and wish her abundant success in her mission of building strong men and moulding a great democratic civilization.

M. C. S. NOBLE, JR., Secretary,
The University Alumni Chapter at Harvard.

Albemarle, N. C., Oct. 11, 1923.

Please accept for our Alma Mater our hearty greetings and our wishes for her continued growth and development.

H. C. TURNER, Secretary,
Stanley County Alumni Association.

New York, N. Y., Oct. 12, 1923.

Congratulations to the University on its birthday.

WM. A. MURPHY, '01,
JAMES B. MURPHY, '06.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 11, 1923.

Tar Heels at the University of Chicago send greetings and best wishes to Alma Mater on its birthday.

R. H. THORNTON,
M. A. HILL, JR.,
GEO. N. MCCOY,
JOHN B. WOOSLEY.

Tampa, Fla., Oct. 11, 1923.

Birthday greetings and best wishes for the continued growth and prosperity of dear old Carolina. Also please beat Virginia Thanksgiving.

JAMES W. MOORIS, JR., '12.

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 11, 1923.

Greetings from sons of North Carolina in Birmingham to Alma Mater. May she continue to grow in size and service.

T. R. EAGLES, Secretary,
Birmingham Alumni Association.

Asheville, N. C., Oct. 12, 1923.

Buncombe County Alumni Association sends greetings and best wishes.

C. B. HYATT, President,
CLINTON K. HUGHES, Secretary.

New York, N. Y., Oct. 12, 1923.

Today I join the hosts of University men everywhere in felicitating the University upon her phenomenal growth and southern leadership.

ZEBULON JUDD.

Rocky Mount, N. C., Oct. 11, 1923.

Sincere congratulations on the University's one hundred thirtieth birthday.

ROCKY MOUNT ALUMNI ASSOCIATION.

Greetings and best wishes to Alma Mater on her birthday.

J. A. BENDER.

Marion, N. C., Oct. 13, 1923.

McDowell alumni send greatest good wishes to Alma Mater. We take pride in the way in which our University is relating itself to North Carolina progress and life. We celebrated the twelfth with well attended and very enthusiastic banquet.

WILL PLESS, JR., Secretary.

CAROLINA PLAYMAKERS FOR ALUMNI

The Carolina Playmakers will give a special performance for the returning alumni the evening before the Carolina-Virginia game Thursday, November 28th at the Academy of Music in Durham. The organization will have just returned from the regular fall tour of Eastern North Carolina. Special arrangements have been made with the Academy of Music to have a large section of the lower floor reserved for alumni and their friends. Three Carolina Folk-Plays will be presented and the performance is scheduled to start at eight o'clock in order that those who wish will be able to attend the dance which is to be given afterwards. Reservations for seats in the Alumni Section may be had by addressing the Alumni Secretary or George V. Denny, Manager of the Carolina Playmakers.

The University fall dances will be on November 30th and December 1st—Friday and Saturday following the Thanksgiving game. There will be five dances—Friday afternoon and evening, and Saturday morning, afternoon and evening.

Miss Ethel Theodore Rockwell, a dramatic director of wide experience, has been appointed director of the bureau of community drama of the University. She succeeds Miss Elizabeth Taylor, now doing professional work in New York City.

This year's Yackety-Yack will contain the pictures of the twelve prettiest girls in North Carolina, as judged by a jury to be appointed by the editorial board. All North Carolina girls wishing to compete are requested to send their photos to R. S. Pickens, editor-in-chief.

1903 VARSITY PLAYS AGAIN THANKSGIVING

The 1903 football team beat Virginia by the score of 16 to 0 in Richmond. Its living members are to have a 20-year reunion when Carolina meets Virginia in Chapel Hill Thanksgiving, if plans of Captain G. Lyle Jones and Manager Wm. H. Smith materialize.

Captain Jones is now with the legal firm of Bourne, Parker & Jones of Asheville, and Dr. Smith practices medicine in Goldsboro. Frank Foust, who played right tackle, died April 22, 1920, and Ray Engle, a substitute, is also reported as dead.

In addition to Captain Jones there were on the varsity: William Fisher, Jr., Pensacola, Florida; N. A. Townsend, Dunn; John Donnelly, Charlotte; C. M. Albright, Route 1, Haw River; R. S. Stewart, Lancaster, S. C.; Albert L. Cox, Raleigh; William P. Jacocks, care National Health Board, 61 Broadway, New York City; James M. Mann, Fairfield; J. Sprunt Newton, Thomasville; Foy Robertson, Durham.

The substitutes were I. C. Wright, Wilmington; John A. Parker, 2503 Munitions Building, Washington, D. C.; G. R. Berkley, Dickson Building, Norfolk, Virginia; W. M. Perry, Elizabeth City; N. M. Singletary, Clarkton; A. R. Hester, Kernersville; W. M. Wilson, 6 East 4th Street, Charlotte.

This reunion has been planned for many months and Captain Jones and Manager Smith are busily engaged getting all to return and in arranging for some fun between the halves Thanksgiving.

PHARMACY SCHOOL HAS BIG GROWTH

Plans for the enlargement of the School of Pharmacy that will afford much needed relief have been announced by Dean E. Vernon Howell. They include an addition of one year to the two years at present required for a degree and the taking over of the chemistry building with its commodious quarters as soon as the new building to house the chemistry department can be constructed.

The enrolment has increased 25 per cent. each year for the last two years. There are 115 this quarter as compared with a total of 90 last year.

ALUMNI MAKE PILGRIMAGE TO TOMB OF WILLIAM R. DAVIE

Anson County Group Assembled at Grave of University's Founder—Pass Resolutions Urging Erection of Monument or Interment in Chapel Hill

C. L. Cates, superintendent of the Wadesboro Public Schools, sends the REVIEW the following account of the visit of the Anson County Alumni to the tomb of General Davie:

To the enclosed invitation nine men responded and motored sixty odd miles to Old Waxhaw Church over in South Carolina to visit the last resting place of William Richardson Davie, the Founder of our University. . . . We arrived at the little Presbyterian church in the woods about one o'clock and found ourselves with plenty of lunch but no drinking water and no house in sight. Doc McKinnon and I drove about half a mile beyond the church and procured bucket and dipper from an old negro mammy, apparently the only inhabitant of that part of South Carolina. Imagine our surprise when we returned and found that the boys had spread the lunch out on the steps of the church and were busily helping themselves. "We are waiting for you." "We see you are." The lunch was worth the trip.

Davie's Grave

Immediately after the lunch we went directly to the little cemetery, which was surrounded on three sides by a stone wall in sad need of repair. Davie's grave is covered by a marble slab in horizontal position and supported on six legs, like a rectangular table. The bottom or feet of these legs rest on another marble slab which covers the grave. Immediately at the foot of the grave rises a handsome stone wall surrounding some family plot but not the plot of the Davie family. His two sons are buried by his side on the right, but the appearance of the spot is such that one unacquainted with it would search through the little cemetery a long time before locating the Davie family.

One man remarked, "Davie, we are here." We read his epitaph, which was inscribed on the table-like surface of the simple marble slab. He once was the head of the Masonic Lodge of our state, but his grave bears no Masonic emblem. He was once Governor of North Carolina, but his epitaph mentions only his faithfulness in public office.

THE OUT-OF-STATE ALUMNI TO REUNITE

Hartsville, S. C.,
Oct. 12, 1923.

*Robert P. Pell, Chairman
Special Reunion Committee,

The Pee Dee Alumni Association of the University of North Carolina, representing this entire section of the state, joins with you whole heartedly in plans for reunion of out-of-state alumni at Chapel Hill next June and pledges its support to every effort that may be made in the further upbuilding of the greatest Southern University and in increasing the usefulness of its alumni.

(Signed)

A. L. M. WIGGINS, Secretary,
The Pee Dee Alumni Association.

He was chief founder of a certain University, but the writer of his epitaph mentions only his devotion to education.

Want a Monument

The party was joined here by Rev. Mr. Hillhouse, the pastor of the Old Waxhaw Church, who said that the church was composed of about sixty members. The pastor welcomed us to this historic spot and then led the party in prayer, out under those historic old oaks. Afterwards a brief business session was held, officers elected, or rather re-elected, and a resolution was passed calling on the General Alumni Association to provide a suitable monument for the tomb of Davie. The writer makes bold to suggest that if this be not done that Davie's remains be removed to the University Campus and properly interred there. Such removal would not be impossible to execute if the consent of the South Carolina authorities could be secured. Of course there is a sense in which a man like Davie belongs to the entire nation and so is properly interred at any place in the nation.

President Pell, '81, of Converse College, is the Chairman of the Special Committee preparing the reunion for June 8-11, 1924, for all sons of Carolina who live beyond the boundaries of the state. Thirty per cent, or 3,300 alumni, live outside North Carolina—most of them originally from the state. As a group, these have been left out of account in the greater part of the association's work.

The other members of the Committee appointed by President Murphy to serve with Dr. Pell are John W. Alexander, '88, and Ed. S. Lindsay, '19, both of Spartanburg. It is the present plan to send available information to all those alumni interested in this project and then begin the work of arranging an attractive program for their information.

No attempt has been made to estimate the number who will return for such a program, but it is easily possible to have here at that time the largest number that has yet come for a regular commencement.

The suggestion is President Pell's. The effort to carry it into full effect began in a meeting of the Spartanburg alumni on the evening of October 8th when they met at a dinner in the Converse College dining room as the guests of Dr. Pell. The meeting was attended by Secretary Grant, and the whole project has the hearty endorsement of the Board of Directors of the General Association.

But since the crowning deed of his great and useful life was the act of presiding at the birth of our University then she can properly claim his last remains. Let the alumni say what they think of this suggestion. But at any rate let us provide some sort of a monument at Old Waxhaw. Come along you Masons and Daughters of the American Revolution!

The following men made the trip: Mr. William L. McKinnon, Dr. J. E. Hart, Mr. J. I. Dunlap, Mr. Fleetwood, W. Dunlap, Mr. Frank L. Dunlap, Mr. C. L. Cates, Mr. W. K. Boggan, Mr. John T. Bennett, and Dr. W. A. Dunlap.

ATHLETIC AUTHORITIES EXPLAIN YALE GAME

Throw New Light on Situation—Say Squad Was Very Much Crippled and Best Defensive Team Was Sent to New Haven—No Reversal of Policy

The Review has received the following statement regarding the Yale game, under the signature of the University athletic authorities:

Up to the present the University athletic authorities have not felt called upon to discuss the Yale game. We had, and still have, reason to feel that the alumni and others criticising our action were laboring under a misunderstanding that would automatically clear up. Several newspaper editorials and letters from alumni, however, indicate that our position has not been made clear.

The Carolina squad that was sent to Yale was not a scrub eleven, but the best defensive team that could be put in the field at that time. The squad was very much crippled: Merritt had been ruled ineligible, Sparrow had sustained a broken leg, Matthews, Fordham, and Randolph were not in condition to play in the game.

Squad Badly Crippled

At the date of the Yale game there had been no division of the squad or even a selection of first string men. In the face of the heavy Southern schedule following the game, it was not deemed wise to risk the possible injury of McDonald and Morris.

It is a well known fact to those who have been following Carolina's athletic policy that the Yale game is scheduled as a practice game for Yale and a tryout game for Carolina. Both coaches always use as many as twenty-two men or two teams in this game. The main purpose is to get a line on as many men as possible and give a large number of men the chance to work under fire, preparing them for future games and enabling the coaches to choose the best men for the more important games.

No Reversal of Policy

There can be no legitimate criticism of the good sportsmanship of what was done. The facts are as stated above. They involve no unusual decision, no reversal of the University's policy in such a game. The arrangements which were made meant that the game was played, as our games always are played, to the best of the University's ability under existing conditions. The contrary impression, due altogether to misleading inferences drawn from the facts, is quite without foundation, and we take this opportunity to say so to the University alumni.

STUDENTS SUPPORT FETZERS

Student opinion seems to have supported the policy of the University's athletic authorities in the Yale game. While no meeting was held to ascertain what form crystallized sentiment would take, student thought, as viewed by the Tar Heel, was that it was a piece of Fetzer strategy well justified. The editor of the Tar Heel said in part:

"The state newspaper writers, many of them Carolina alumni, delivered a stiff jolt to the Fetzer football strategy when the news of the New Haven massacre reached these parts. Wonder if they would have peppered their sauce so liberally if the subs had held Yale to a tight score."

DEFENDS FETZER STRATEGY

Claude W. Rankin, '07, resident agent of the Hartford Fire Insurance Company, Fayetteville, writes: Editor, THE ALUMNI REVIEW, Dear Sir:

I notice considerable comment in the state papers regarding Carolina sending her second string eleven against Yale.

In my opinion this was football strategy pure and simple and in no way reflects poor sportsmanship on the Fetzers.

The Fetzers have the reputation, and justly so, of being clean coaches and good sports wherever they are known. Under the circumstances they did the right thing.

HERE IS A PROTEST

Robert C. deRosset, '18, manager of the credit department of the Murchison National Bank, Wilmington, writes: Editor, THE ALUMNI REVIEW, Dear Sir:

As an alumnus, I feel constrained to raise a voice of protest against the methods used in the recent game with Yale by those in charge of the destinies of the University's football team.

I know not the underlying causes which prompted the authorities to retain our so-called "first string" men on the sidelines, and I care not. The fact remains that Carolina made a fool of herself before the largest crowd that has ever witnessed her in action, and in the presence of the students and alumni of a Northern University which had come to look upon her as a hard-fighting and straight-playing opponent, worthy of the name in every respect.

FINE SPORTSMANSHIP

The finest thing about Thursday's football game between the University and State college elevens was the magnificent sportsmanship displayed by both teams and the student bodies. The two institutions set an example that should, and no doubt will, be followed by the other colleges in the state. There was the keenest sort of rivalry displayed, but the players and the students did not allow that rivalry to dominate and affect their good sportsmanship. There probably were a few isolated cases of objectionable conduct among just a few students, but that did not reflect the attitude of the student bodies, and all through the game there was always heard and seen the caution against doing anything that would even appear objectionable.—Durham Morning Herald.

Prof. Collier Cobb, head of the department of geology of the University, addressed the Current Topics Club in Rocky Mount last month.

CAROLINA VARSITY AFTER STATE CHAMPIONSHIP

Defeat by Maryland Probably Eliminates Tar Heels in Race for Southern Honors—Team Handicapped by Long Injured List and Lack of Reserves

At this writing it appears that the Carolina varsity has clinched the state championship. That will not be finally settled, however, until Davidson comes to Chapel Hill on November 17. Davidson has been defeated by Wake Forest and Carolina won from the Baptists 22 to 0. Hence comparative scores would seem to assure the University of state honors. But comparative scores, of course, sometimes mislead.

Southern and South Atlantic championship hopes apparently went glimmering when Carolina lost to Maryland. Only by a strange turn of events between now and the end of the season could comparative scores be so juggled as to make Carolina a contender for the southern championship, for Maryland is usually considered in the southern race.

V. M. I. Game In Richmond

The V. M. I.-Carolina game will be played in Richmond as last year, when it was a great success. The date is November 10. Arrangements are being made to accommodate a record-breaking crowd. Last year the attendance was estimated at more than 10,000. This year it is expected to be around 15,000. Decision to play the game in Richmond automatically brought the Davidson contest to Chapel Hill. Charlotte and Winston-Salem made strong bids but student sentiment

THE SCORES

The scores of games played by the Carolina team up to the time the REVIEW went to press were:

Carolina	22	Wake Forest	0
Carolina	0	Yale	53
Carolina	14	Trinity	6
Carolina	14	N. C. State..	0
Carolina	0	Maryland ..	14

demanding that it be played at home.

The biggest handicap of the Carolina team this season has been the lack of reserve power that enabled last year's eleven to win southern championship honors. The team was crippled at the opening of the season by the loss of Jack Merritt, dependable back, whose failure to pass his studies made him ineligible, and George Sparrow, another outstanding back, who broke his leg in the Wake Forest game.

Many on Injured List

Another discouraging factor has been the large number of players on the injured list since the season opened. McDonald, Randolph and Bonner, three first-string backs, have not been in good playing form this fall. Neither has Robinson, center, and Captain "Casey" Morris was on crutches for a while. In the face of such discouragements it would seem that superior coaching undoubtedly has been a deciding factor in Carolina's success thus far this season.

The Wake Forest game was played in Chapel Hill before a crowd of 5,000—a record for a Carolina-Wake Forest game. Because of the large number of injuries sustained the Fetters didn't send all the first string men to New Haven the next week-end to battle the Yale bull dog. Yale outplayed the Tar Heels in all departments, Carolina's poor punting making the Eli touchdowns easy. The game was played before a crowd of more than 15,000, a record for the opening of the season in the Yale Bowl.

The Trinity Game

The Trinity game was played on Hanes Field in Durham on University Day. It was a half holiday on the Hill and most of the students went over. Here there was another record crowd—for this contest—of more than 7,000. The game was marred by heavy penalties on both sides, Carolina losing 85 yards and Trinity 60 via this route. Carolina made 16 first downs to Trinity's 2; 156 yards through the line to Trinity's 18; 181 yards around the ends to Trinity's 20.

The annual Fair Week game with N. C. State in Raleigh was played before a crowd of 12,500, 3,000 more than the year before. The victory gives Carolina three of the five games played since the two institutions resumed athletic relations.

Fine Sportsmanship

A commendable spirit of sportsmanship was shown by the student bodies of two institutions, while the members of the two great rival elevens, as usual, fought hard but with the best of fellowship prevailing.

Maryland won from the Tar Heels at College Park, Md., on October 27 for the first time in three years. Carolina was outplayed in every department except punting and forward passing.

Showing Carolina kicking goal in the Trinity game. A crowd of more than 7,000 witnessed the contest.

HEARD AND SEEN AROUND THE WELL

The Pan-Hellenic Council is wrestling with the difficulties of the new fraternity pledge system. This is the first time that there has been any period elapsing between pledging and initiation. The question naturally arises, What about a pledgee that wishes to change his mind, or what about the pledging fraternity which discovers its mistake? The Pan-Hellenic has decided to ask the University for a faculty committee to act as arbitrator and to require an appeal to that committee in cases of this sort. The penalty on the pledgee for disregarding this machinery would be refusal to let him join any fraternity. The penalty on a fraternity for refusing to submit to such arbitration or for initiating a pledgee who refuses, would be the debarring of that organization from any initiations for a period of twelve months.

Tables Are Turned

Some of the upper classmen are quite a bit excited about what they regard as lack of spirit, as indicated by poor cheering at the games. I must confess that I can't get excited about this. Most of my undergraduate days were spent in that period of time when we rejoiced to think that although the score was against us, we had out-yelled the other side. I find myself most strangely willing to enjoy the opposite situation for a season.

The difficulties of the post office have started a new practice of delivering Tar Heels and magazines by just laying them out where subscribers can help themselves. The fact that every student is a subscriber makes this possible. Of course, by the time this article is printed, we will have dormitory mail delivery. Thus do the times move.

Dormitory Units

With the inauguration of the Publications Union, the Literary Societies get rid of one of their great financial burdens. This produces two momentous effects, the lowering of the initiation fee and the more careful sorting of prospective freshmen for men really interested in society work. Thus stripped for action, the societies bid fair to revive their ancient record for serious work.

It has been a peculiar feature of our self-government that it applied to the campus and to the class, but not to the dormitory. At most institutions, the dormitory has been the first unit so organized. This year, for the first time, all dormitories have elected officers. All dormitories have put out tag football teams, and every dormitory has a telephone. When one realizes that the next group of dormitories will be in Battle's Park, out beyond the east gate, and that the next group after that will probably be in the woods south of the athletic field, it is obvious that dormitory self-government is the next step in our student government tradition.

This year, as every year, for the past three or four, the matter of freshmen "caps" is under discussion. For some reason, this campus finds it hard to follow in the footsteps of many of his sister institutions, and each year the proposition is turned down.

Boll Weevil's Future!

The Carolina Boll Weevil bids fair to follow the Carolina Tar Baby into the discard. Its present business manager has been refused registration in the University for dishonest business practices. Incorporating his publication, and locating his legal residence at Chapel Hill, he continues to publish the magazine. The University requires members of the Board to resign on the grounds that they are associating themselves with an enterprise which is harmful to the good name and interest of the University, and so we are back again where we once were. This is not so, because it is difficult to handle humorous publications. It happens because it is so easy to have one and to make money on it that those students who first take hold, as representatives of the student body, try to run away with the thing and make it a private business venture, with money making by fair means or foul as their only object.

Telephones In Dorms

The present Debating Council undertakes a new scheme to arouse greater interest in inter-collegiate debate by having freshmen in the inter-collegiate debates. Such contests were held last year with Trinity and Wake Forest and will be held this year, on a still larger scale. It is the purpose of this plan to increase the number of underclassmen, who are eligible for debating, to impress them with the fact that the inter-collegiate debating is a genuine "major sport."

It is a curious sensation to call the South Building on the telephone. However, the thing works both ways. The Tar Heel carried an item this week to this effect: "In the wee small hours of the night, a tousled haired, bleary-eyed student rushed frantically to the telephone, and getting his call through, was heard to say: 'Professor, I have got to such and such a point on this problem and can't get any further. What is the next step?' Yes, sir; thank you, sir," and back to his room he ran to finish the problem." The Tar Heel surmises that the faculty members may have to take out their phones.—F. F. B., '16.

LUCIUS POLK McGEHEE

Lucius Polk McGehee, Dean of the University's School of Law, died in the Westbrook Sanitarium in Richmond, Va., on October 11, at the age of 55.

He suffered from a nervous breakdown early last fall, and was forced to leave Chapel Hill on the eve of the opening of the new law school, into the construction and plans of which he had put his best time and thought.

The son of Montford McGehee and Sarah Polk Badger, he was born at "Woodburn," in Person county, and received his early education at Fray and Mason's school in Raleigh, graduating from the University in 1887. He taught for three years and then returned to the University and completed the law course. He went to New York city and became associate editor of the American and English Encyclopedia of Law. His book, "Due Process of Law," won wide recognition.

In January, 1903, he was married to Miss Julia Leslie Covert, of Digby, Nova Scotia. She died the following August.

In 1914 he became professor of law in the University, and in 1910 was chosen dean. Under his leadership the school grew steadily in number of students, in the strength of its faculty, in prestige. Handicapped as he always was by antiquated and inadequate quarters, he looked forward eagerly to the completion of the new law building.

THE UNIVERSITY IN PRINT

THE REVIEW has on two previous occasions called attention to "Literature and Life," a four-volume library of English and American literature, edited by Dr. Edwin Greenlaw, Kenan Professor of English in the University, and published by Scott, Foresman and Company, of Chicago, of which the third volume has now been issued.

In the preparation of the four volumes, of which the present volume is the third, Dr. Greenlaw and his collaborators have not only worked out a series of books which contains all the reading in English and more required for students in secondary schools, but the selections have been presented in such a way as to give the high school student a conception of literature which will become one of the permanent possessions of his life. Furthermore, the series, when completed, will not only constitute a body of material for the use of high school pupils, but a splendidly selected library of the best in English and American literature suitable for the home or for the person long out of high school or college whose knowledge of the subject was fragmentary at best.

The three volumes which have so far appeared are very attractive in appearance, have sold well around the 25,000 mark, and admirably serve the purposes for which they were intended. The fourth and final volume is now in press and will be issued in the near future.

"Nature in American Literature" is the title of a book by Norman Foerster, Professor of English in the University, which was published by the Macmillan Company during the summer. The works of Bryant, Whittier, Emerson, Thoreau, Lowell, Whitman, Lanier, Muir, and Burroughs are made the basis of a series of studies the purpose of which is to show the interest of these writers in nature and their knowledge of it, and to trace the development of this interest and knowledge which is now the common possession of all American writers through American literature.

The first issue of North Carolina Commerce and Industry, published under the joint auspices of the School of Commerce and the Extension Division of the University of North Carolina and the North Carolina Commercial Secretaries' Association, came from the press last month.

In make-up it is similar to the well established University News Letter, being printed on one side of a sheet about two-thirds the size of that of an ordinary newspaper. For the present it will be published monthly, but its sponsors expect to make it a semi-monthly soon, and after that a weekly.

The board of editors has nine members, three from the Commercial Secretaries' Association and six from the University faculty, C. W. Roberts, W. T. Ritter and Burke Hobgood, secretaries of the chambers of commerce in Greensboro, Winston-Salem and Durham respectively are members from the Commercial Secretaries' Association. W. J. Matherly, managing editor, and D. D. Carroll, C. T. Murchison, C. D. Snell, Edmund Brown and S. H. Hobbs compose the editorial board for the University faculty.

The South is a great storehouse of raw materials, and awaits only exploitation, in which the chemist is destined to play a leading part, to make it one of the richest industrial sections of the world, says D. H. Killifer, '15, New York, associate editor of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry, official journal of the American Chemical Society.

Resources of the South as seen by Dr. Killifer include coal and iron besides scores, even hundreds, of less well known materials. Among these, he says, are clays from which the finest porcelains can be made, ores of almost every metal known, copper, zinc, lead, manganese, chromium, nickel, cobalt, aluminum, minerals useful in themselves, mica, graphite, building stone granite and so on as well as minerals which can be made useful by simple processes such as barytes, phosphate rock, etc.

Work on Carolina's newest athletic field, located southeast of the freshman field, got under way last month. The new field will be used exclusively in connection with the mass athletics program.

THANKSGIVING IS HOME-COMING DAY

Alumni of the University are being given an opportunity to secure the choice seats for the Carolina-Virginia game in Chapel Hill Thanksgiving.

Daniel L. Grant, Alumni Secretary, has sent an application blank for tickets to 11,000 former students with the following announcement:

"We are very glad to give University alumni opportunity to secure the choice seats for the Virginia-Carolina game in advance of the opening of the regular ticket sale.

"We should like to urge that you make your application as early as possible; and that you protect us by not allowing this alumni application card to fall into the hands of any other save a University alumnus. Any further necessary information will be sent you when the tickets are mailed on November 15th.

A Nip and Tuck Affair

"The University will be most happy to have you return on this occasion not only to witness the game, but to see the University plant and its student body today, and more alumni than ever assembled."

Virginia's defeat of Trinity 33 to 0 would seem to indicate that the Old Dominion eleven has developed rapidly since the season opened. Hence, unless Carolina shows a decided reversal of form, the chances are that the Thanksgiving game will be a nip and tuck affair.

Judging from letters from alumni and the general interest throughout the state, some 15,000 or more persons will witness the game this year.

Charles T. Woollen, graduate manager of athletics, is working out plans to take care of the crowd. Temporary stands will be erected.

Two years ago some 10,000 persons came to Chapel Hill, despite the fact that the game had been called off and the decision to play it was not reached until the night before.

Col. Donald Walter Cameron, Laird of Lochiel and chief of the Clan Cameron of Scotland, and Lady Lochiel, accompanied by Governor Morrison visited the University recently. They were shown over the grounds by President Chase.

WITH THE ALUMNI HERE AND THERE

Col. Springs, '82, Rises to Wealth and Fame

In business he has found the romance of life. Such may be truly said of Col. Leroy Springs, '82, citizen of Lancaster, S. C., and a national figure in manufacturing, banking and business.

Col. Springs is a native of Fort Mill, S. C. Why he came to Chapel Hill for college work his questionnaire does not indicate. His father was a University of South Carolina graduate, '40. It is recorded, however, that his grand-uncle, Adam Alexander Springs, entered the University of North Carolina in 1797, four years after it was founded, and was one of its first graduates. That probably explains why Springs of '82 came to Chapel Hill.

After leaving the Hill Springs went to Charlotte, entered business and found it much to his liking. But he didn't tarry long there; he felt the urge to return home, and he did. In Lancaster, S. C., he began to organize mercantile firms, banks and cotton mills, until today his influence in the business world is felt throughout the country.

During the first fifteen years he devoted virtually all his energies to merchandising and banking. He built the Lancaster Cotton Mills, now the largest textile plant under one roof in the South. It covers nine acres and represents an investment of more than $5,000,000.

He is president of seven cotton mills in South Carolina. Also he is president of the Bank of Lancaster, the Landsford Water Power Company, the Lancaster & Chester Railway; is vice-president of several other companies and director of a large number of corporations. He is a member of the National Chamber of Commerce, the American Cotton Manufacturers Association, South Carolina Bankers Association, New England Manufacturers Association, and the New York and New Orleans cotton exchanges.

From 1886 to 1890 he was a member of the staff of Governor John P. Richardson; hence the title of colonel. He was one of the most ardent and persevering supporters of the nomination of Woodrow Wilson at Baltimore in 1912.

Recently he gave to the Presbyterian College of South Carolina a new gymnasium, which will be one of the most handsome and complete in the South.

Mrs. Springs is considered one of the most prominent club women and welfare workers of South Carolina.

Col. and Mrs. Springs have one son, Captain Elliott White Springs, Princeton, '17, who was recently married to Miss Frances Ley of Springfield, Mass.

Parker and Brooks Law Firms Combine

E. S. Parker, Jr., law '96, of Graham, one of the best known lawyers and citizens of North Carolina, now president of the North Carolina Bar Association, moved to Greensboro October 15 to become associated in the practice of law with A. L. Brooks and Julian C. Smith in a new firm to be known as Brooks, Parker and Smith.

News of the organization of the new firm will be of general interest not only to citizens of Greensboro but to lawyers and business men generally throughout the State. It brings together some of the best known lawyers in North Carolina and creates a law firm that will be one of the strongest in the South Atlantic section.

At present Messrs. Brooks and Smith are retaining their offices in the Dixie building where they have been associated with Charles A. Hines, law '08, under the firm name of Brooks, Hines and Smith. Mr. Hines recently withdrew from the firm and formed a partnership with R. C. Kelly.

Though not actively engaged in politics Mr. Parker was elected as representative from Alamance county in the last general assembly and immediately took a leading part in the deliberations of that body, especially on legal and financial matters. He was elected president of the state bar association at the last meeting at Blowing Rock.

Doesn't Like "High-Brow" Stuff

J. S. White, '96, furniture manufacturer of Mebane, writes: "I know you have an 'up hill job' and am always glad to lend a helping hand. I read THE REVIEW from 'kiver to kiver' except the 'high-brow' stuff which is read only by Billy Noble, Munchie Toy and Archie Henderson.

"Am still making bed-room furniture, which is known all over the United States as the best in its class. Am keeping everlastingly at it, trying to make it better every day, and we have the cream of the trade of the country. We can sell everybody but my Alma Mater."

On Bass Drum Methods

George M. McKie, '07, associate professor of public speaking in the University:

"I have no desire to rock the boat in which you are trying to get some ideas across to us alumni. Your job is a difficult one. In thinking of what you have to do, I am reminded of a criticism of Roosevelt and the reply that was made to it. Some one accused Roosevelt of continually "beating the bass drum." "Well," the reply was, "it takes a bass drum to wake you fellows up." So I have no doubt that you have to adopt all sorts of devices to wake us up. Even so—and this is what I am driving at—I have my doubts as to the advertising value of representing the average alumnus as an illiterate mixture of Josh Billings and Ring Lardner."

COL. LEROY SPRINGS, '82.
Whose rise to wealth and fame has been phenomenal.

WADE H. ATKINSON, '82.
President of the District of Columbia Alumni Association, which inaugurated a movement to make the University campus "The most beautiful spot in the South."

Reson Stevenson Decorated

Dr. Reson Stevenson, A.B. '02, A.M. '03, now a member of the department of chemistry in the College of the City of New York, was recently decorated by the French government with the Croix de Chevalier de la Legion d'Honneur. This honor was bestowed upon him in recognition of his valuable services in the French laboratories while with the A. E. F., first as captain and then major. Dr. Stevenson is a native of Wilmington and is a brother of Mrs. Oscar P. Peck of that city.

News From Milwaukee

Edmund J. Lilly, '15, captain, infantry, U. S. Army, Room 315 Pereles building, Milwaukee, Wis., sends the following notes:

Wallace Strowd, '09, came in to see me a week or two ago. He is with the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture and lives at 2121 Chadbourne Ave., Madison, Wisconsin. It was surely good to set eyes on a real Carolina Alumnus again. He was the first one I'd seen since I had dinner about a year ago with J. M. ("Duke") Cox, '15, at the Morrison Hotel, Chicago.

I'll take that back about his being the first one since Cox. I saw Capt. Sam Cratch, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army, about six months ago. He was in Milwaukee on an inspection tour with several other students from the Q. M. Subsistence School in Chicago. Cratch was in the Law class of '15.

I'm anxious to get the next copy of THE ALUMNI REVIEW. It's the only way I have of keeping in touch with the happenings on the Hill.

I'm not planning a trip abroad or anything like that at present but I've just received a month's leave of absence and hope to light out for North Carolina within the next few days.

Phillips Heads Greensboro Civitans

Guy B. Phillips, '13, principal of the Greensboro High School, has been elected to succeed Dr. J. W. Tankersley as president of the Greensboro Civitan Club. The Rev. I. Harding Hughes is first vice-president. Mr. Phillips has been one of the club's most active members for the past two years, serving the past year as vice-president. He is keen for all public service and is recognized as one of Greensboro's foremost leaders among the young people.

Pritchard, '07, Out for Coolidge

From Asheville comes the following newspaper item:

"George M. Pritchard, former solicitor in this district, well-known lawyer, son of the late Judge Jeter C. Pritchard, and a conspicuous figure in Republican circles in the state, has announced his candidacy for delegate-at-large to the Republican national convention next year on a platform that includes support of

ROBERT C. deROSSET, '18.

Manager of the credit department of the Murchison National Bank of Wilmington, recently elected president of the New Hanover Alumni Association.

President Coolidge as the next Republican nominee for the presidency. Mr. Pritchard pledges himself to vote for Coolidge."

Dr. Mann, Med., '10, Honored

Dr. I. T. Mann of High Point, elected national vice-commander of the American Legion at San Francisco, has been an outstanding figure in legion circles in North Carolina.

He is a charter member of the Legion in this state and has held several state department offices. While service officer Dr. Mann devoted a great deal of his time to the work and rendered great aid to former service men both sick and well, in getting matters with the government straightened out.

Several times he has been mentioned for state commander but has never pushed his candidacy nor allowed his friends to enter the field in his behalf.

D. B. Bryan, '11, Now Wake Forest Dean

D. B. Bryan was elected Dean of Wake Forest college by its board of trustees at their September meeting.

Since leaving the Hill he has studied in New York and Columbia Universities from which he received his master's and doctor's degrees, respectively. For five years he was a member of the faculty of Richmond College. In recent years he has delivered numerous commencement sermons in the high schools of the state, many of which he has had occasion to inspect for the State Department of Public Instruction. He is now head of the department of education in Wake Forest as well as Dean. He reports three children running around his house, which was recently completed.

Back From Foreign Countries

A good sized delegation of University faculty members and students spent the past summer in Europe and other foreign countries.

Among them are: Dr. Oliver Towles, professor of French, on leave on the Kenan Foundation; Dr. G. A. Harter, associate professor of Latin, who spent a year in Europe, mostly in Rome, on leave on the Kenan Foundation; Dr. Kent Brown, professor of German, also in Europe on leave; Herman Staab, assistant professor of romance languages; Thomas McKnight, instructor in Spanish; Thomas J. Wilson, III, who divided the summer between Paris and Tours; Wyatt Pickens, instructor in Spanish.

J. Osler Bailey, '25, of Raleigh; James Hawkins, '25, of Raleigh, who worked his way over on a cattle boat and fed "exactly" 38 bulls; P. C. Froneberger, '23, of Bessemer City, who was with The Standard Oil Company in Mexico; S. B. Caveness, '24, of Greensboro; "Si" Whedbee, of Hertford, '23, who was in South America; Jack McDowell, '23, of Scotland Neck; Winslow McIver, '26, of Sanford; Alex P. Thorpe, Jr., '25, of Rocky Mount; William Tyson, '24, of Greenville; Bill Gant, '25, of Greensboro;

Candidate for the University

This is a picture of George MacAulay Lee Costner, one year six months old, whose dad, J. MacAulay Costner, A.B. '09, A.M. '11, instructor in mathematics in the University in 1909-11, is now salesman for the National Cash Register Company, living in Raleigh at 117 North McDowell street. Mrs. MacAulay (nee Marion Jane Maloney) sends the picture along with the following note:

"What makes a man hate to tell anything about himself? Of course, as usual, I have to do it. MacAulay (I think you all call him Jonas, but I don't like it) has been with the National Cash Register Company for a little over a year now and the last week in March he started out to be a salesman for them. For the past four months he has lead the agency in selling points and is expecting to win a trip to Bermuda in January.

"Here's the second reason he has to work so hard (the first being his wife—like all poor married men) an eighteen months old son—George MacAulay Lee Costner. What do you think of his size? Who said baby needed new shoes? He wears No. 7. Takes after both parents —. He's not a prize-fighter—just sucks his thumb, hence the mit.

"P.S. MacAulay doesn't know I wrote this."

KEEPING UP WITH THE CLASSES

1866

—Gen. Julian S. Carr celebrated his seventy-eighth birthday on October 12th.

1868

—A. W. Graham, Sr., has moved from New York City to Oxford, N. C., where he is practicing law.

1885

—Augustus White Long, native of Chapel Hill, instructor and assistant Professor in English in Princeton University from 1902-16, is now living the life of a retired man in Manasquan, N. J. He is married and has three children.

1887

—Dr. W. W. Long, director of extension in Clemson College, S. C., was given the degree of LL.D. by the University of South Carolina in June, 1923. Dr. Long's work has attracted very favorable comment.

1888

—Isaac Wayne Hughes writes: "I have no fence running around my house, but an uncommon wife and three equally uncommon children—take after their mother you see. Twenty-four hours is a cramped day, and the electric light bill is a stunner! It is never a question of what shall I do, but which! But in the midst of all this my pride in the University has never relaxed. And I hope and pray for her an ever increasing greatness born of the highest service rendered—the equal of the best."

1889

—George S. Wills is a member of the faculty of Western Maryland College, Westminster, Md.

—Junius Parker, native of Graham, is counsellor for the American Tobacco Company in New York City, 41 East Forty-second street. He is married and has two children. He is a member of the executive committee of the New York Alumni Association.

Congressman Abernathy was also the principal speaker at the Boll Weevil Conference held in Goldsboro under the auspices of the Eastern Carolina Chamber of Commerce.

—Dr. R. B. Miller will return to the Hill for the Thanksgiving game. He has been practicing medicine in Goldsboro for eighteen years. Previous to that he was for three years superintendent of the A. C. L. hospital in Rocky Mount.

1899

H. M. WAGSTAFF, Secretary,
Chapel Hill, N. C.

—S. W. Reaves was recently appointed acting dean of the College of Arts and Sciences of the University of Oklahoma, while Dean Buchanan is serving as acting president.

1900

ALLEN J. BARWICK, Secretary,
Raleigh, N. C.

—The Rev. Thaddeus A. Cheatham is among the clergymen who are keeping abreast of the times. His sermons in the Calvary Church in Pittsburgh, Pa., are broadcasted by the Westinghouse Station K. D. K. A., which estimates his invisible congregation at more than 300,000.

1901

DR. J. G. MURPHY, Secretary,
Wilmington, N. C.

—J. F. Stokes is state commander of the Maccabees, "America's great international fraternal insurance organization." His headquarters are in New Bern.

—J. T. Dortch is with the Internal Revenue Service of the United States Treasury Department in New York City. Address him Room 523, Customs Building.

—S. T. Peace is president of the First National Bank of Henderson, N. C.

—R. C. Holton is principal of the Arapohoe Public Schools with which he has been connected for five years. He has reason to be proud of his work. Four years ago the high school had an enrollment of thirty-eight and one teacher. This fall it opened with an enrollment of eighty-two and four teachers. In the elementary department two hundred pupils and six teachers, not counting two music teachers. He writes: "This is a fine community for work. I like it."

—John G. Carpenter is solicitor of the fourteenth judicial district of North Carolina. He is married and has five children, three girls and two boys.

—Alfred W. Haywood, native of Haw River, is a successful attorney of New York City. He is a member of the executive committee of the New York Alumni Association. Married—yes, and has three children.

1905

W. T. SHORE, Secretary,
Charlotte, N. C.

—J. H. Harper writes: "I want specially to commend the University Extension service. It is doing a great work. It was a pleasure to me a few days ago to hear a very prominent man who is not an alumnus of the University speak in the highest terms of praise for the work the University is doing for the people of North Carolina. Am ready to support the University in every way I can."

—Stroud Jordan, native of Durham, is chief chemist for Henry Heide, Inc., New York City. He was formerly chief chemist for The American Tobacco Company for nine years. During the war he served as captain with the A. E. F. overseas. His address is 352 Parkside avenue, Brooklyn. He is married and has two children.

Quincy Sharpe Mills, North Carolinian

After rising to high success in ten years, this brilliant young editorial writer of The Evening Sun, of New York, was killed in an attack on the German lines in July of 1918.

Now a rarely appealing memoir of him has been brought out by Putnam's under the title of "One Who Gave His Life". It tells of Mills' boyhood, his college days in Chapel Hill, his struggles in New York, and finally his experiences in the Army. The volume contains letters that give an unusually vivid picture of the war.

No North Carolinian—especially no alumnus of the University, which Mills loved so deeply—should be without this book.

"A fitting tribute to the memory of a brave soldier."—New York Times.

"An exhibit in Americanism."—Richmond News Leader.

"A bright and brilliant story of a young life."—Boston Transcript.

"A glorious book."—San Francisco Bulletin.

"A vivid series of pictures of the personal side of the American soldier's life at the front."—The Times, London, England.

Announcement

We have moved from our old location on Martin Street to our new building across the Square opposite the Union Passenger Station.

We invite school officers and teachers to visit our exhibit rooms where they will see many new things—some great improvements over the old lines of equipment.

The greatest progress in school furnishing development during the past twenty years has been made during the past two years and we invite the critical inspection of competent school officials.

Our business extended into twelve states during the past year and we feel that we are in position to meet the requirements of the school trade whatever they may be in quality, style, price and service.

FOR SERVICE TO UNIVERSITY STUDENTS, FACULTY AND ALUMNI

All successful men use the toasted process in their business!

THEY call it Efficiency. But it amounts to the same thing.

Because, stripped of its purely technical significance, the Toasted Process is efficiency by another name. It represents the last ounce of effort which, in all the productions of men, distinguishes the isolated examples of quality. Toasting the tobaccos in LUCKY STRIKE CIGARETTES adds 45 minutes to the cost of production, but it seals in the flavor.

And we would rather save the flavor than the time.
